Home From the War.

From the Cornua Journal.
There was great rejoicing at the home of Alderman Eveleth over the safe arrival of his son Ralph, who has been serving his country in the Philippine Islands. Ralph was a member of the First Washington Volunteers, and served over a year in the islands. He enjoyed good health until within a few weeks before he left the islands, when he had an attack of fever, which gave him a hard pull, and although he has gained twenty-five pounds since, yet he too plainly shows the effect of the disease. However, with this cold climate and home care, it is confidently expected that he will soon recover his old-time vigor.

Ralph participated in twelve engagements and fortunately escaped the bullets of the Filipinos. Only three of the company were killed in battle. While he has no fault to find with his officers or treatment received, yet he has no desire to repeat the experience.
